WHO INCITED PATERSON MOB HAVE LEFT.

MORE PEOPLE HURT IN CLASH THURSDAY.

ANARCHISTS HOLD A MEETING

Two of Those Injured are Expected to Die—Cries of "Kill the Mayor!" "Burn the Mills."

Pateron, N. J., June 19.—The scene of yesterday's bloody outbreak and riot of 3,000 silk dyers helpers in which nearly a score of people were shot or otherwise injured, and much property damaged, is quiet this morning.

That spirit of riotous bravery, which only shows itself when forces of numbers spurs it to activity and there appears no dangerous opposition in sight has been succeeded by a sullen temper of fear.

Pateron believes today that there will be no more outbreaks. The anarchistic leaders, Wm. McQueen, editor of Liberty, an anarchist paper, and G. Galliano, editor of La Question, who incited yesterday's outbreak have disappeared and cannot be found. The strikers without a leader are not expected to make further hostile demonstrations. The militia will not be called out unless the police force is unable to cope with the situation.

At 7 o'clock this morning the whistles blew at the silk mills, where yesterday's riots took place. At the Augusta mill small bodies of strikers endeavored to dissuade employees from working but there was no show of force. The fear of violence, however, kept many of the women operators from working and all of the mills reported that they were short-handed. The mills are guarded by special deputies and police. Many of the firemen who were pressed into police service yesterday have been withdrawn.

All meeting places where the strikers gather are being watched to prevent the fostering of trouble. Strikers who gathered opposite the silk mills were dispersed by the police and not long after a heavy shower sent many of the loiterers scurrying to their homes. The injured were reported doing well today, though two of the strikers, Mesirini and Lorasavino, who were shot, will probably die of their wounds.

Harris, the reporter, who was shot and beaten while trying to take a photograph of the rioters, was improved today.

Shortly before 9 o'clock this morning a body of strikers went to Turn Hall to hold a meeting. A small force of police with night sticks scattered the strikers and several broken heads were reported. The strikers led their injured fellows away. Several small bands of strikers gathered later in the morning and moved through the streets but made no show of violence. Stern measures will be used against rioters. Mayor Hinchcliffe has instructed the police to use their revolvers in case of trouble.

"It is better," he said in an interview this morning, "that anarchists who cause the disorder should be shot than that they continue to terrorize the citizens of the city. Order must be preserved."

It was learned today that a meeting of anarchists, or "right of existence" members was held last night in a hall on Straight street.

Resolutions were passed condemning the police, the government and the mayor. There were cries of "kill the mayor and burn the mills." It is said that a plan was adopted to "dynamite" Lockwood & Hurd's mill which remained open yesterday. The police reported at 11 o'clock this morning that all the mills, with the exception of Pelgram & Mayers' were running, though short handed. The strikers spent most of the morning in Italian bakeries and cigar stores. The police had no difficulty in scattering them whenever they gathered on the street corners. Mayor Hinchcliffe suspended Chief of Police Fred Gaul today. The mayor said the chief lacked backbone.

HOTEL FIRE

In Which One Man Was Cremated and Others Injured—St. Clair House at Toledo.

Toledo, O., June 19.—The St. Clair Hotel was gutted by fire this morning. Robert Smith, a sailor, whose union card gives his place of residence as Oswego, was cremated. Several others were injured by jumping or in being taken from windows. Andrew Morton, aged 90, of Cleveland, and C. M. Boucher and wife of Cleveland, were taken from the roof. There were about 25 people in the house. The fire started in Smith's room, which had no outside window.

Toledo, O., June 19.—(Bulletin)—Two more bodies have just been found in the St. Clair Hotel ruins. They have not yet been identified.

Hope of Victory.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 19.—President Mitchell's call for a joint anthracite-bituminous convention has greatly strengthened the hopes for victory among the strikers in the hard coal regions. Until July 17, the day set for the convention at Indianapolis, the strike here will drift as it has during the past three weeks.

Hanged Himself.

Salem, Ind., June 19.—Jos. Hoggatt, in jail with Mrs. Malcott Nancy Pavey and her two daughters, charged with the murder of the infant child of the first two, hanged himself this morning, using the sheet on which he slept as a rope. At 2 o'clock he said to a friend at the window outside he was sure a mob was coming to hang him.

CAPITALISTS

FROM BOSTON GO OVER LINES OF THE CITY

And Newark & Granville Road—The Purchase May Soon be Officially Announced.

As further evidence of the deal that is on for the purchase of the Newark & Granville and the Newark City electric lines by the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction company, was the presence in Newark Thursday afternoon of Messrs. T. L. Saltonstall, Chauncey Eldridge, J. Smith Jr., all of Boston, and Supt. J. R. Herrigan of the C. B. L. & N. company. The party arrived at 2 p. m. and will leave at 6:17. In company with Supt. Loftus of the Newark & Granville road, they made an inspection trip to Granville, and looked over the city lines.

There has been a part payment made on the purchase and it is understood that if everything is as represented the Eastern men will buy the road consolidating it with the Buckeye Lake system.

The actual construction work of the extension of the road to Zanesville is expected to begin within a month. The survey for staking out the road is now being made.

M'CARTY

WAS NOMINATED AT MANSFIELD AFTER A FIGHT

WHICH WAS LED BY NOMINEE'S OWN BROTHER.

UNUSUAL POLITICAL CONTEST.

Antagonism is Said to Have Resulted from the Judge's Treatment of His Brother.

Mansfield, Ohio, June 19.—Republicans of the Fifth Judicial Circuit in convention here yesterday afternoon, nominated Judge T. T. McCarty, of Canton, for Circuit Judge. The convention was warmed up by two exciting contests. In the morning Geo. Brinkerhoff, of this city, called the delegates to order and preliminary business was transacted. In the afternoon Charles C. Upham, of Canton, Chairman of the Judicial Committee, temporarily set the morning's proceedings aside and the convention had to begin all over again.

Judge McCarty's delegation in Stark county was contested by a delegation led by Upham and Judge McCarty's brother, Andrew McCarty, bitterly opposed to the Judge's nomination, and said to be at the bottom of the whole contest. The committee on credentials decided in favor of Judge McCarty's delegation.

The two delegations waged a hot fight before the Committee on Credentials for two hours. The anti-Judge McCarty delegation, led by Upham and Andrew McCarty, claimed the right by virtue of a resolution alleged to have been adopted by the Judicial committee at a meeting in Wooster a few weeks ago, whereby each committeeman was empowered to name the delegation from his county. On this authority Upham named the delegation from Stark.

The Judge McCarty Delegates were named by the Judge on authority conferred upon him by the Stark County Republican Central Committee. They claimed that the Judicial Committee meeting at Wooster was attended in person only by Upham and Judge Frank Taggart, of Wooster.

The curious antagonism of Andrew McCarty to his brother, which prompted him to take the leadership in the fight against his nomination is said to date back several years.

It is said that he became angry at his brother, the Judge, because he was not permitted to "run" the Stark county Common Pleas Courtroom after Judge McCarty's election. He was impressed with the notion, it is said, that he ought to have special preference because his brother was on the bench, and was piqued because the Judge treated him as any other attorney.

The clash between the temporary officers of the Judicial Committee, who opened the convention in the afternoon, was decidedly comical. Mr. Brinkerhoff endeavored to proceed as if there had been no interference, when Chairman Upham, of the Judicial Committee had selected R. M. Greer of Knox county for chairman, and John M. Convent on Coshocton as secretary. As several objections had arrived at the noon hour which supported Upham in this matter there was nothing for Mr. Brinkerhoff to do but to resign.

The convention was held in the Common Pleas courtroom. About 30 delegates were present at 1 o'clock when George Brinkerhoff called the convention to order. Delaware, Fairfield, Holmes, Knox, Morgan, Perry and Tuscarawas counties were not represented.

Mr. Brinkerhoff was chosen temporary chairman and W. J. Davies of Stark, temporary secretary.

After the delegates had selected representatives for the various convention committees Frank Taggart of Wooster, raised a sharp objection against the temporary organization and morning proceedings of the convention on the ground that the call specified 1 o'clock. Mr. Brinkerhoff answered him with some acerbity that the call was broad enough to permit of the proceedings at any hour. Mr. Taggart said other delegations were arriving, that the Knox county delegates had just reached the hotel and that they had a right to participate in the proceedings. He left the room in evident displeasure.

Following were the committeemen selected from Licking county: Credentials—S. L. James, Resolutions—C. C. Forry, Rules and Order—C. H. Kibler, Organization—C. C. Forry, Committeeman—Fred M. Black.

"JUST TIRED"

Ohio Postmaster Who Ended His Own Life Wrote That His Accounts Were Straight.

Waynesville, Ohio, June 19.—In looking over the personal effects of ex-Postmaster Jonas Janner, who committed suicide by sending a bullet through his brain, the following note was found: "Just tired. No ill will against any one. My books are as near right as I know how to keep them. Have no fear of meeting my God. Have never intentionally done any one any wrong. Good bye all."

LACK

OF A LEADER FOR MOB SAVED EDSON.

BUT THE PRISONER'S DANGER IS NOT YET OVER.

TROUBLE FEARED AT VINCENNES

Brother of the Prisoner While Trying to Escape from Prison Was Shot Thursday.

Vincennes, Ind., June 19.—Hundreds of men surrounded the jail in the early hours this morning, clamoring for the life of Wm. Edson, a prisoner charged with attacking four year old Irma Pfuhl.

Bloodshed is sure to ensue if the mob attacks the jail, as the deputies are under orders to shoot to kill.

Edson's trial has been set for tomorrow.

The local company of militia consisting of 46 men, is now gathering at the armory for the purpose of marching to the jail to guard Edson. Excitement runs high this morning and tonight's work is awaited with interest. Many strangers are arriving in town this morning.

The sheriff is undecided how he will get the prisoner to the court room, one block away from the jail tomorrow.

It was almost 5 o'clock this morning when the mob left the jail. Lack of leadership alone saved Edson, as the mob was large and determined. They had two street car rails with which to batter down the doors of the jail, but dropped them when ordered to do so by the armed deputies on guard.

Vincennes, Ind., June 19.—Sam Edson was shot in the hand today while attempting to lock Patrolman Metzger in the workhouse and thus make his escape. Edson is serving a sentence for drawing a revolver and threatening to shoot into the crowd if it attempted to lynch his brother.

Indianapolis, June 19.—The sheriff has wired Governor Durrin from Vincennes, asking for troops to protect Wm. Edson from a mob which now surrounds the jail at that place. Edson is charged with assaulting a four-year-old girl. The Governor has replied to the request for militia by ordering the sheriff to swear in deputies—1,000 if necessary.

Shortly before 2 o'clock a. m. the mob made a half-hearted move toward the jail with a steel beam, but it was held in check. The sheriff, it is believed, is unable to swear in a sufficient number of deputies to save Edson, should a determined mob be made to break into the jail.

It is estimated that Canadian forests will furnish wood for the pulp industries for 840 years.

Just because a man suffers from boils is no indication that he is a lobster.

It's rather a shady transaction when a man has a family tree made to order.

SPOTTED

WITH PLEDGES THAT ARE LEFT UNREDEEMED.

MR. RICHARDSON GIVES RECORD OF REPUBLICAN PARTY.

LEGISLATION AGAINST TRUSTS

Is Demanded, Yet the Republicans are Paralyzed With Fear—Mr. Richardson's Speech.

Washington, June 19.—The near approach of the end of the present session of Congress was signaled by a general political speech by Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, the leader of the minority, who spoke on the deficiency appropriation bill. The Republican party, he said, had absolute control of all branches of the government for six years. He proposed to examine into its trusteeship.

The dominant party's record, he argued, was spotted all over with the leprosy of pledges unredeemed. First, he directed all attention to the promise of reasonable trade concessions to Cuba, solemnly given, which had been defeated, he stated by discord and rebellion in the Republican ranks.

He then went back to 1895, charging that the Republicans had betrayed their pledges on the money question, and later in 1900 when they appealed for a further lease of power in order to cure the alleged defect in the legislation for the perpetuation of the gold standard. Not one line of remedial legislation had been placed upon the statute books since 1900.

Mr. Richardson announced that in his opinion the gravest danger now threatening the welfare of the people and the country was the growth of the power of trusts.

There was, he declared, an irrepressible cry throughout the country for Government control of the great trusts. Congress alone could heed that cry. If it was not heeded these remorseless trusts could proceed in their greed to defy the power of the Government itself. Mr. Richardson charged that the growth of these great trusts was due to the existence of the highest protective tariff ever placed on the statute books. There was sworn testimony of the beneficiaries of the tariff that it was the "mother of trusts."

The Sherman anti trust law to which the dominant party pointed with pride, he said, was a dead letter. Yet Congress did nothing. The Republicans, he said, seemed to be paralyzed with fear.

When Mr. Richardson declared that the Democrats were willing to remain in session until the snow fell in order to give the people some relief from tariff taxation, his Democratic colleagues gave him a round of applause. He quoted a statement attributed to Speaker Henderson about the circulation of false reports regarding Cuban reciprocity and added:

"From recent developments it would seem that possibly the Government itself was participating in the circulation of the reports of which the speaker complained." (Democratic laughter.)

In conclusion Mr. Richardson charged the Republican party with improper, scandalous and reckless extravagance. In four years the increase of appropriations, he said, was $1,067,000,000. For that vast sum of money he asked what the United States had gained, and in reply read the closing paragraphs of Senator Hoar's Philippine speech, in which the Massachusetts senator gave a list of the vessels we had acquired by the war with Spain. Mr. Richardson was warmly congratulated by his Democratic friends when he finished.

Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriation committee, in a brief reply, said he was ready to go to the country on the record of the Republican party. He caused much merriment on his side of the House by describing the Republican party as pulling the wagon while the Democrats stood off and found fault. Mr. Cannon signified a willingness to see Congress adjourn at once. Mr. Bartlett (Ga.) offered an amendment to appropriate $25,500 to reimburse the revenue of Cuba for the amount paid to Governor General Wood out of the Cuban revenues by direction of the secretary of war in excess of his salary as brigadier general.

WOMAN SAVED

From Being Cut to Pieces by a Dog Which Pulled the Insane Man Away.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 19.—Wm. T. Agar, 48, a car works employe, this morning cut the throat of his nurse, Mrs. John Davis, 50, then cut his own throat and jumped into a cistern. Both are in a precarious condition. Agar imagined that the nurse was giving his sick sister poison. Agar's bull dog saved the woman from being cut to pieces, as the dog jumped in and pulled Agar from her. He was temporarily deranged.

RISK'S LIFE

TO DISPROVE THE CONSUMPTION THEORIES

That Are Advanced by Dr. Koch—Doctor Garnault's Wife is Greatly Distressed.

Paris, June 19.—Dr. Garnault of this city, who challenged Prof. Koch's announcement at the London Tuberculosis Congress last year that it was impossible for human beings to catch tuberculosis from cattle, and who went to Berlin and offered to make a practical test, his offer not being accepted, has since made an exhaustive study of the subject. He is convinced that Prof. Koch was not only mistaken, but accuses him of deceiving public opinion.

Dr. Garnault, in order to prove his contention, went to the slaughter houses of La Villette and inoculated himself with consumption matter taken from a diseased cow which had been seized and ordered destroyed. T. enoperation was performed in the presence of three doctors. On the previous night Dr. Garnault blistered his forearm below the elbow, and after exposing the wound, from which the blood was flowing freely, applied to it a poultice composed of pounded glands of the cow. He left this in contact with his flesh for two hours, and his arm was not washed or dressed afterward. What remains of the glands will be injected into guinea pigs. The doctor does not expect results for two or three weeks.

Out of ten known cases of slaughter men who were accidentally contaminated three have died, and the health of the others was shattered. If the disease declares itself Dr. Garnault will be treated by Dr. Theo. Smith of Boston, Mass., who has been exposed to the dangers of the contagion of bovine tuberculosis.

The wife of Dr. Garnault was kept in ignorance of the experiment until he had been operated upon. She is now greatly distressed.

BABY

USED TO SHIELD THE GUILTY MOTHER.

MILLERSBURG IS EXCITED OVER SHOPLIFTING.

THE TWO WOMEN CONFESSED

Fine Laces and Silks Taken From Stores—Parallel to Recent Newark Cases.

Millersburg, O., June 19.—A sensation was created here yesterday when Mrs. Frank Graber and Mrs. John Wyss, wives of well-known saloon keepers, confessed that they stole a large amount of goods, valued at several hundred dollars, from Millersburg merchants. A dozen firms have missed articles, the principal losers being Hartman's dry goods store, Louis Forlow's dry goods store, New York racket store and Mayers Bros., dry goods store.

For some time silks and laces have been seen upon the women that answered the description of the missing goods, but a careful watch failed to reveal any action to elicit further suspicion. Mrs. Graber always carried her baby in her arms while shopping, and was very careful of the child. Tuesday she seemed a trifle too solicitous and her actions excited the suspicions of a clerk in Hartman's.

At a sign from the other woman she would either set the baby down to examine its clothing for a moment, only to pick it up with goods under it, or to smuggle something deftly in the folds of its dress. The two were confronted and amid tears confessed.

In their rooms silks, laces, jewelry and shoes worth several hundred dollars were found cleverly concealed. The women begged that their husbands be kept in ignorance of their doings.

Some of the goods were identified and part were returned. The stolen articles that had been used were appraised at $170, for which a bill was rendered to the astonished husbands, who paid the same. Many valuable articles have not been accounted for.

Gift To Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 19.—President Schurman of Cornell, received a check for $250,000 Wednesday, from John D. Rockefeller, who offered the money ten months ago on condition that the university raise a like sum. A well known man met the proposal and sent his check for $250,000. This gives Cornell $500,000 to be used as President Schurman may direct.

Zoa Phora Cures Female Weakness.

Mrs. E. G. Underwood, 542 West Lake Street, Chicago, Tells of Years of Suffering, Cured by this Wonderful Remedy for Women.

Hundreds of Chicago women and thousands over the entire United States testify to the wonderful cure from years of sickness and pain from female weakness by the famous Zoa Phora. In childbirth it strengthens and prepares for the ordeal, it soothes the nerves and in the hour of delivery there is little or no pain or danger, and recovery to health and strength is rapid and certain.

In the change from girlhood or in the matron's change of life, Zoa Phora is the one medicine that can be relied upon every time to bring the delicate woman safely through to health. It is not an ordinary patent medicine but a powerful remedy that acts direct to the parts, curing even that dread trouble prolapsus without surgical aid.

Mrs. E. G. Underwood, 542 W. Lake Street, Chicago, says: "For four years

I have been troubled with leucorrhoea and falling of the womb (prolapsus) and have tried nearly all kinds of medicine, but found no relief whatever until I began taking Zoa Phora. I can now proudly say I am entirely cured and I positively believe there is no medicine in the world equal to Zoa Phora for women's ills."

Zoa Phora gives instant relief to the pains and backaches of irregularly and suppression of Nature's flow. It cures the weakness that forces many otherwise healthy women to take to their bed four or five days every month. Every suffering woman should send for a large trial bottle and medical advice. It is absolutely free. Zoa Phora is for sale by all druggists at One Dollar or is sent, all charges prepaid, to any address on receipt of price by the Zoa Phora Co., Kalamazoo, Mich.

TROOPS

ARE TO BE AT STATE GROUND NEXT MONTH.

ORDERS ISSUED FOR COMING ENCAMPMENT.

TO BE CAMP WM. MCKINLEY.

State Ground Named in Memory of the Late President—Serious Work Expected of Soldiers.

Engineer Priest and son, Joseph Mc-Maken and others from Columbus are now at the State Encampment Ground west of Newark making further improvements in anticipation of the coming of the Ohio National Guard to Newark this summer. The pipe lines the being extended so as to accommodate the large body of men and an additional well is to be driven at once.

The Guard will come this year for the first time in two brigades. The first brigade under command of General Mc-Maken of Toledo, consists of the following regiments: First of Cincinnati, Second, Col. Ream, of Lima; Third, Col. Mead, of Dayton; Sixth, Col. Stanbury, of Toledo; Battery B, of Cincinnati, and the Ninth battalion. The adjutant general's department on Wednesday issued general orders for the brigade encampments to be held at the state camp grounds, henceforth to be known as Camp William McKinley. The first brigade will camp July 14-21.

The orders specify that ladies will not be quartered or subsisted in camp, and that the state law prohibiting the sale of liquors within one mile of a military camp, will be strictly enforced. Earnest work will be expected of officers and men. The orders are as follows:

1. In honor of the late president of the United States, the state camp ground near Newark, O., will hereafter be designated as Camp Wm. McKinley.

2. The National Guard will perform its annual tour of duty for the year 1902 at Camp William McKinley.

The first brigade, July 14 to 21, and the second brigade, August 4 to 11, inclusive.

Brigade commanders will arrange for the necessary transportation between company stations and Newark at a rate not to exceed 1 cent per mile, short line mileage. No extra allowance will be made for the transportation of baggage or horses.

For subsistence an allowance will be made at the rate of 40 cents per day for each officer, enlisted man and civilian employe actually present and mustered, which sum must cover every item in connection with the subsistence of the command, unless otherwise herein specified. Brigade commanders will provide subsistence.

Medical supplies will be issued on the requisition of brigade surgeons. Necessary tentage, fuel, straw, mess tables and benches will be provided by these headquarters.

The following amounts for horse hire will be allowed: To each brigade headquarters, $99; to the First and Seventh infantry, $12 each; to each remaining regiment, $90; to the Ninth and engineer battalions, $30 each.

Forage at the rate of 25 cents per day will be paid for each horse allowed by law, for a period not to exceed eight days.

Civilian cooks may be employed, not to exceed: At brigade and each regimental headquarters, four; at each headquarters of separate battalions, three; each company and band, two. The state will make same payment and allowance for enlisted men, but any additional expense must be borne by the organization incurring same.

One civilian groom for each general field and staff officer, will also be mustered under the same pay and allowance as for civilian cooks.

The names of these civilian employes will be noted in red ink at the bottom of each muster and pay roll, following the names of the enlisted men. Neither civilian cooks nor grooms will be allowed to wear any part of the state uniform.

In order to prepare for the arrival of troops in camp and close up the accounts after camp, the brigade quartermaster, an acting brigade quartermaster sergeant and four men; the brigade commissary sergeant and four men will be allowed pay and subsistence for four days and a detail of one enlisted man from each company and band in the brigade will be allowed pay and subsistence for two days. The officers and men serving on this detail will be mustered and paid on a separate roll, prepared under direction of the brigade quartermaster.

Under no circumstances will payment be made by the state for any period of time exceeding eight days, except as herein provided, and no indebtedness, other than for transportation of the state, will be incurred at the expense of the state.

Earnest work will be expected from both officers and men, and brigade commanders will see that this requirement is fully complied with.

Ladies will not be quartered or subsisted in camp. Nor will camp followers, other than the regular civilian employes be quartered in camp.

The traffic in intoxicating liquors is strictly prohibited. The state law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks within one mile of a military camp will be strictly enforced. (Section 3079, R. S. O.)

Blank muster and payrolls will be furnished direct to officers charged with their preparation, and these officers will see that they are properly filled out, in accordance with the printed instructions thereon, prior to departure for camp.

Attention is invited to the following provisions of Par. H, G. O. No. 6, A. G. O. S., 1901: "The custom, which seems to have been quite prevalent in the Guard, of taking substitutes to camp, must be discontinued."

Within 30 days after the close of the encampment, each brigade commander will forward to the adjutant general a report of his encampment, embodying such suggestions and recommendations as may be deemed pertinent.

Attention is invited to the following paragraph of G. O. No. 12, A. G. O. S., 1896: "No enlistments will be made in any organization within a period of 30 days prior to the date of an annual encampment, except by special permission from these headquarters."

3. So much of G. O. No. 22, A. G. O. S., 1898, as assigns troop A and Light batteries A, B, D and H to brigades, is hereby rescinded.

AT CAMP MATTHEWS.

Col. Benjamin Priest, chief engineer at the state house, Lt. G. G. Wyman and force including Major John Trent, an expert cook who went through the Porto Rican campaign with Col. Colt, are at the state camp ground and will be there till the first brigade comes in July. They are putting down a new well, laying 9000 feet of two and three inch pipe underground in order to supply the soldiers with water.

The engineers' camp has been named Camp Matthews in honor of Capt. Charles E. Matthews of Col. Colt's staff.

THE OLD TIME DERBY.

And How It Differs From the Meet of These Racing Days.

It is strange indeed, to look back upon the manners and customs of the racing world in the year of the first Derby and contrast them with the new methods. In 1750 there was the journey down to the little Surrey town, and a coachman thought himself lucky if he could force his way from Westminster to Epsom in twelve or fourteen hours without dislodging a wheel en route. None but the richest class could afford to drive there at all, for those were days when tradesmen thought, like John Gilpin, an outing once in two years as much as they could afford.

In those days, too, a visit to Epsom meant making a week of it. Lodgings had to be taken in the town by those who were not fortunate enough to be invited to share the hospitality of some local magnate. Racing began about 11 a. m., and after witnessing one or two heats the company would retire to the town to dine, returning later to witness the conclusion of the sport.

Nowadays the man of fashion for the most part elects to travel to and fro by rail. He gets his Derby, as it were, while he waits. It is quite possible for him to partake of an early luncheon in Pall Mall, witness the great race without acquiring a wrinkle in his collar or disturbing the nap of his box hat and land back at his club in time for 5 o'clock tea and the special editions of the evening papers—"The Classic English Derby," by Edward Spencer, in Outlook.

MISSIONARY

SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING IN NEWARK.

Nearly 100 Delegates From Three Churches at First M. E. Church.

The Day's Program.

The annual convention of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Zanesville District of the M. E. church met in this city, today, with between seventy-five and one hundred members of the society in attendance.

The district is composed of three churches, the Second street M. E. church of Zanesville, the First Church of Newark and the church at Malta.

The meeting was called to order by the president of the convention, Mrs. Jennie Miller, of Malta, and the convention was opened with devotional by Mrs. Wright of Newark.

The address of welcome to the convention was delivered by Mrs. David Matticks.

Mrs. Hartshorn delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the Foreign Missionary society, and Mrs. King delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The addresses were responded to by Mrs. Rathbun of Zanesville in an eloquent address.

Mrs. Miller, the president, then gave the President's greeting to the convention.

This was followed by reports of the district secretaries. The reports all showed an unprecedented success during the past year in every department the work having more than doubled, and right here it is proper to say that the Newark society is the banner society of the whole Ohio Conference.

At the conclusion of the reading of the reports, Miss Bertha Doomey rendered a beautiful vocal solo.

This was followed by a paper on "Work Among Young People," by Mrs. Wm. Smith of Zanesville, which was a gem, and which was listened to throughout with deep interest.

The afternoon devotionals were read by Mrs. Julius Wright, of Zanesville, followed by a paper entitled "Deaconess Work," by Miss Nettie Galloway of Newark.

Miss Mossbrook, of Newark, then rendered most beautifully a solo, "If the Waters Could Speak as They Flow," which was appreciated by all.

The paper, "Our Training Schools," by Mrs. Robert Kirk, of Zanesville, was a fine production, filled with excellent suggestions which, if carried out would result in much good.

"Elizabeth Rust: The Power of a Noble Life," written by Miss Laura Foreman of Newark, was read by Miss Kittle Suter of Newark. It was an admirable production, and was much appreciated.

The following are the officers elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. George Stratton, Newark.

Vice President—Mrs. Robert Kirk, Zanesville.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Edwin Rathbun, Zanesville.

Treasurer—Mrs. Jennie Miller, Malta.

Cor. Sec.—Mrs. John Gorby, Newark.

Mite Box Sec.—Mrs. H. J. Sheppard, Zanesville.

An excellent dinner was served in the parlors of the church by the ladies of the society and supper will also be served this evening.

Millions of Fish For Wisconsin.

Great attention is being paid this year by the Wisconsin fish commission to the stocking of the streams and lakes of that state. Fifteen million pike fry and 2,000,000 muskellunge are to be distributed in the Wisconsin lakes along the line of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, and it is proposed by the Wisconsin authorities to give the visitor to that state this summer plenty of sport with rod and line.

WOULD NOT INSURE HIM

Insurance Companies Refused to Insure the Rev. J. W. Yeisley, Because He Had Kidney Trouble.

This case is but one of thousands where the head of the house was refused insurance, because he had kidney trouble. Mr. Yeisley had given up in despair when some friend recommended Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it cured him.

Mr. Yeisley writes:

"My kidneys and liver were in bad condition and I was anxious for relief. I had tried many remedies without success and when I bought a bottle of 'Favorite Remedy' it was with but little faith in its ever helping me, but in a short time it effectively proved its merit. Perhaps the best proof I can give that it has completely cured me is to state that I have since been accepted by four different life insurance companies."

The Rev. Mr. Yeisley is the pastor of the First Reformed church of St. Paris, Ohio, and is as well the editor of the St. Paris dispatch.

There is no question that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best and surest medicine in the world for diseases of the kidneys, bladder, and liver, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, as well as the weaknesses peculiar to women. It quickly relieves and cures inability to hold urine and the necessity of getting up a number of times during the night. It puts an end to that scalding pain when passing urine and corrects the bad effects of whisky and beer.

All druggists sell Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy in the New 50 cent size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

A PET ECONOMY.

Almost Every Man Maintains One. Small Though It May Be.

"Got a match about you?" asked the bookkeeper of the chief buyer.

"Wonder you wouldn't buy matches once in awhile!" growled the buyer. "I've been supplying you with matches for years."

"I never buy matches—never have and never will," said the bookkeeper. "It is my pet economy. Most every man has one."

And the bookkeeper was right. Nearly every man has a pet economy and will go to a great length to indulge it. At the Union club they still tell of a worthy old member who was particular about using a certain kind of soap, but was not willing to buy it. They used the soap at the club, and he appropriated the cakes as fast as he needed them. He needed so many that the steward changed the brand.

The same spirit of economy in small things makes other people stuff themselves with bread in order that no butter may be left on their plate and wasted. Hundreds of men would not dream of buying a lead pencil. To save buying stationery others write their letters at hotels which are generous in providing writing materials. Scores of men and women save pennies by picking up discarded newspapers in the elevated trains and ferries. And so it goes. It is not so much the actual money saved that moves people in these little schemes; rather an inborn desire to economize in something.

But to return to the bookkeeper, the buyer and the matches. The bookkeeper continued:

"You are stingy with your old matches. I'll just take a lot, and then I'll be independent of you."

Then he emptied out half the box.—New York Tribune.

SHOES.

Never wear a shoe that pinches the heel.

Never wear a shoe or boot tight anywhere.

Never come from high heels to low heels at one jump.

Never wear a shoe that will not allow the great toe to lie in a straight line.

Never wear leather sole linings to stand upon. White cotton drilling or linen is healthier.

Never wear a shoe with a sole narrower than the outline of the foot traced with a pencil close under the rounding edge.

Never wear a shoe with a sole turning up very much at the toes, as this causes the cords on the upper part of the foot to contract.

Never have the top of the boots tight, as it interferes with the action of the calf muscles, makes one walk badly and spoils the shape of the ankle.

Never think that the feet will grow large from wearing proper shoes. Pinching and distorting make them grow not only large, but unsightly. A proper natural use of all the muscles makes them compact and attractive.

IDLEWILDE PARK.

Sunday, June 15 to 21.

The services of Prof. Lawrence Kenner of Houston, Texas, have been obtained for a series of his telephone feats as an outside attraction, at a great cost.

Prof. Kenner is pronounced by scientists and the press to be the greatest living exponent of this science and a wonder of the age.

He has performed this feat in all the large cities throughout the United States. He performed last summer on Young's Pier at Atlantic City, N. J., operating from Philadelphia.

A platform will be built on Park grounds with telephone and cots for subjects. He will work from the city. After two subjects have been hypnotized and Doctors have made tests, then he will return and perform other miraculous feats and awaken subjects. They will fall as shot, through the heart. Wonderful and exciting. This feat will be performed every evening promptly at 8 o'clock. Don't miss it.

Collin W. Hogle Filed Suit for Divorce Against Rose Hogle in Knox County.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 19.—The Mt. Vernon Natural Gas company has just drilled in a small well on the Miller farm in Miller township. While the well is estimated at only 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, it is considered a fair one and will be a valuable addition to the large number of producing wells owned by the company in that territory. The drilling was stopped in eight feet of sand.

SIBERIA OR FREEDOM

More than half a century ago, before the serfs were emancipated in Russia, the Count and Countess Gedeonovsky owned a beautiful girl, Liza. Ivan Panshine, who had inherited a fortune from his father, a merchant, fell in love with her, and his love was returned.

One morning Count Gedeonovsky upon opening his mail received an offer from Panshine of 5,000 rubles for Liza, the young man stating that he wished to marry her. Liza, who knew the offer was before her master was listening at the door, peeping through a crack to hear and see what chance there was for her and her lover's happiness. Her heart sank within her when she heard the count exclaim:

"What impudence! This man, whose father grew rich beside me while I grew poorer every day, now thinks to deprive me of my most valued serf, Liza! Come here!"

When Liza came, the count showed her the letter and asked her if it had been written with her consent. She admitted that it had, whereupon she was dismissed by her master with the words, "I will teach you how to form plans without consulting me." Then he wrote a letter to Panshine declining the offer and warning him never to approach Liza under penalty of the law both for himself and her. Panshine knew what this meant. The count was in favor with the government, and a word from him with a trumped up charge would be sufficient to send both the lovers to Siberia.

Panshine, who was a determined fellow, pondered long seeking for some plan to possess himself of Liza. At last he concluded to fight the count with his own method. He would make a charge against Liza of being a member of a band of revolutionists, get her into his possession and carry her beyond the borders of the empire. No one but the most daring would attempt such a plan; for, if success meant happiness in marriage, failure meant misery in prison.

Panshine knew well the corruption of Russian officials. He approached one of them whom he had long known, Mikhailovich, and made him an offer of 10,000 rubles if he would arrest Liza and then secretly turn her over to her lover, to be carried beyond the borders of Russia. The offer was accepted. Panshine sold his estate and sent the proceeds, except what he needed to help him in his flight, to a bank in America. When he had arranged for relays of horses to cover the distance to the Prussian border, a hundred miles, all was ready for the attempt.

One evening Mikhailovich appeared at the count's estate and read a warrant for the arrest of Liza on a charge of conspiracy. The count was astonished. He dared not resist an officer; but, suspecting a plan to get his serf out of his hands, as soon as a drosky could be got ready he drove after the officer and his charge. He had not gone far before he came upon a drosky overturned, Mikhailovich being in the snow crying for help and Liza nowhere to be seen. As soon as the count could stop Mikhailovich's cries which he kept up as long as he dared the officer said that he had been set upon by Panshine and a number of his friends and the girl taken from him. Fortunately for the count, he had the best horse in his stables, one possessed of remarkable speed and endurance.

Liza was astonished at her arrest and, supposing that her master had stigmatized it, was in despair. When suddenly a drosky turned from a byroad Panshine jumped out and she was transferred to his conveyance, her distress was turned into an exciting hope. She asked for no explanation, well knowing that liberty and happiness were now to vie with a prison and misery.

Panshine had studied the route and made his preparations accordingly. He had with him petroleum, cotton and pitch pine for the purpose of burning bridges after he had passed over them. Reaching a bridge across a branch of the Vistula, he fired the structure. It was in flames when the count appeared. Hesitating a moment, he dashed through the flames and across. The lovers had gone on, but were now only half a mile in advance. Nevertheless they had fresh horses, while the count's horse had followed them for twenty miles.

The count, realizing that he must get a change, stopped at a farm house enough to do so, then pressed on. He felt sure that they would take the nearest road to the border, through Warsaw, and did not stop to ask their direction. From Warsaw but one road led straight eastward, and he took this road. Coming soon after to another branch of the Vistula, he saw that the bridge was in flames. Here he was delayed, till he could find a ford, when he continued the pursuit, getting fresh horses wherever he could find them. When he reached the border, he saw the fugitives passing it but a few hundred yards ahead of him.

Panshine and Liza did not know that they were in Germany till they saw a man in German uniform. Then they clasped each other in an embrace. The count saw it and turned about. He knew that he was beaten and did not care to have them see his discomfiture. "Oh, Ivan," said Liza, "how could you take such a risk?"

"By taking it there was hope; by not taking it there was no hope," he replied.

"But the prisons!" she exclaimed. "Never mind prisons, sweetheart. We are going to a land of freedom."

OPENING

OF CONVENTION OF ENGINEERS THURSDAY.

DELEGATES VISITED BUCKEYE LAKE IN AFTERNOON.

A LIST OF DELEGATES GIVEN

Visitors well pleased With Newark. Ladies Given Auto Ride—The Day's Program.

The sixth annual convention of the Ohio State Association of Stationary Engineers was called to order at 9:40 o'clock by local president, J. A. McFarland, there being 58 delegates present from all parts of Ohio.

The session opened with prayer by C. W. Allen, secretary of the local association.

In behalf of Miller Association No. 10, of Newark, President McFarland extended a welcome to the delegates and friends, and introduced Mayor C. C. Forry, who on behalf of the citizens of Newark, extended to them the freedom of the city, suggesting that Newark was proud to welcome such a body of men, representing an association of men which had in view, besides fraternity and goodfellowship, certain educational objects for the betterment of its membership.

President McFarland then introduced Past National President Herbert E. Stone of Boston, Mass. Mr. Stone said that he had been around Newark on Wednesday and found it to be a beautiful city and blessed with fine manufacturing plants, some of which he had visited and received a cordial welcome.

He congratulated the Ohio Association upon the alertness, intelligence and moral tone of its members, as represented by the delegates present.

Past National President C. H. Garlick of Pittsburg, was the next speaker and he said the engineers were an organized body which did not resort to force to settle any difference. The organization had rapidly grown and the sixth annual convention of Ohio, would be a pattern for other states to imitate.

National Secretary Dan van Tassel, of Chicago, was introduced and his words were congratulatory of the state and local associations.

President McFarland gave a short history of the organization of the Newark Association, which he said had been named Miller Association, in honor of one of Newark's most progressive popular and genial citizens, W. E. Miller, whom he introduced. Mr. Miller's short speech was heartily applauded.

Joseph Howle, State President of the Association, of Cleveland, was next called upon and after a recess of five minutes the convention was called to order.

State Secretary R. A. Orin read the minutes of the convention held in East Liverpool, Ohio, June 20, 1901, which were approved.

President Howle then read his annual address which was carefully listened to.

The following is a list of the delegates present:

J. H. Wright, Piqua.
W. Zimmerman, Piqua.
A. W. Phillips, Wellsville.
E. R. Brooker, Byesville.
James D. Hart, Bowling Green.
John Kahl.
E. F. Monigold, Martin's Ferry.
J. Y. Denham.
George Mitchell.
J. W. Conley, Calhoun.
Samuel Patrick, Coshocton.
H. C. Fashbaugh, Canton.
R. W. Sharpe, Lorain.
Jos. Howle, Cleveland.
Calvin A. Miller, Delphos.
R. A. Bryson, Delphos.
J. McComiskey, Warren.
O. C. Pillickody, Steubenville.
J. R. Turman, Mansfield.
J. S. Malone, Lisbon.
L. O. Holliday, Greenfield.
F. H. Yeager, Cincinnati.
L. D. Kinzig, Dayton.
E. H. Harmon, Columbus.
C. Garven, Columbus.
C. Sullivan, Ashtabula.
W. F. Brubaker, Toledo.
C. M. Ward, Cleveland.
Ed E. Hill, Cleveland.
Ernest S. Webber, Canal Dover.
J. A. McFarland, Newark.
Claude Daerst, Pomeroy.
C. J. Washburne, Elyria.
J. F. Reynard, Springfield.
T. M. Plant, Massillon.
F. E. Bramer, Ironton.
E. F. Dietrich, Cleveland.

W. E. Haswell, Circleville.
C. F. Donner, Lima.
W. S. Roberts, Marietta.
Ed. Paul, Fostoria.
Michael Rohrer, Cincinnati.
J. A. McCounaghy, Akron.
J. H. Ebright, Zanesville.

Notes.

George M. Collier of Cleveland, Chief Examiner of Stationary Engineers of Ohio, with headquarters in Columbus, is present and will remain throughout the convention.

John Griffith, a delegate from Miller Association of this city, is the oldest engineer in the city in active service. Mr. Griffith came to Newark 57 years ago today, and is well known to almost everybody in town.

George A. Barbee, chairman of the State License Committee, of Columbus, is present at the convention. Mr. Barbee was prominent in the State convention of the Federation of Labor held in Newark, in December, 1900, and is well known over the state as a leader of the laboring interests.

The ladies attending the convention this morning went in one of the Auto Coach company's vehicles, for a trip about town, which was greatly enjoyed by them, and when they returned they all expressed themselves as highly pleased with Newark, the wide and beautiful streets and the evidences of prosperity.

Besides the delegates there are a large number of visitors. The number of out of town guests, including delegates, is about 200.

Charles W. Mulford, secretary and treasurer of the Artisan Publishing Company of Cleveland, is attending the convention, and circulating among the delegates in the interests of his paper "The Artisan," a journal devoted to the interests of the laboring class, embodying the most advanced ideas for the betterment of their service, as well as organization.

The following committees were appointed:

Credentials—Pillickody, Webber, McConaghy.

Ways and Means—Sullivan, Hill, Rohr, Paul, Tanner.

Auditing Committee—Reynard, Sharp.

Press—McFarland, Allen, Fulk.

Constitution—Harmon, Roberts, Mougele, Connally, Denman.

The auditing committee reported a balance of $165.61 in the treasury.

The afternoon session was called to order by President Howle at 1:15 o'clock, and the constitution committee were granted five minutes to finish their report.

The following telegram was sent:

"Edward G. Jacques, Boston, Mass. 'Ohio State Association in sixth annual convention sends warmest greeting.'"

"ROBERT A. ORIN, Sec."

This telegram will be read at the grand rally of engineers held this evening at Boston.

President McFarland of Newark moved that the convention adjourn at 2:30 to take a special car for Hebron and Buckeye Lake.

While at Hebron the visitors inspected the Hamilton-Corliss compound engines in the new power house there, which inspection was thoroughly enjoyed by the delegates.

The credentials committee was relieved from further duty and the convention will act on any further credentials which may come up.

The committee on constitution reported recommending the adoption of a resolution introduced by Akron association 23, levying a per capita tax of 5 cents to be paid the first of May and first of December, each year, less the amount if any to the credit of the association on the books of the State secretary.

A motion was made to adopt the resolution, which motion was amended to make the tax 3 cents each payment, or six cents a year. The original motion carried, and the per capita tax will be 10 cents payable semi-annually. The per capita tax was 5 cents heretofore.

The sense of the convention was that more money was needed for state work.

Mr. Barbee of Columbus, said that the engineers should have an attorney in Columbus, retained and paid by the year to look after the interests of the engineers.

Another resolution which the committee will probably report favorably was one to pay the State secretary, an amount in some degree commensurate with the work required of him. The convention adjourned at 2:15 until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

Wednesday night an informal reception was held in the A. O. U. hall, evening being spent in renewing old and making new acquaintances among the delegates present. Speeches were made by the National officers, representatives of the local association and others.

Through an error in publishing the program of the Engineers' convention held in Taylor Hall on last Tuesday evening the names of two of the star performers were left off the program. The persons referred to are Miss Ethel Houston and Miss Mabel Glenn. Miss Houston is a vocalist of more than usual talent, and of extraordinary ability, considering her age. She rendered a solo and was accompanied by Miss Glen, who performed her part in a very creditable and entertaining manner.

A STORY OF OLD VIRGINIA

(Original.)

Before the war the Bentley family of Virginia owned a large estate on Chesapeake bay. The storm of war swept over it twice, once during the Revolution, after which it was restored, and once during the civil war, since which time it has been divided and is now owned in part by former slaves and their descendants.

During the early part of the last century young George Bentley came into the possession of the property. He fell in love with a French girl, Jeannette la Tour, and married her against his mother's wishes. Before the old lady died she sent for one of the house servants, Joe, and said to him:

"Joe, I am convinced that my son's wife will be his ruin. You and he played together when you were little children, and though you are his boy,
I know you love him. Keep a watch over his wife, and if you find that she is about to bring discredit or loss upon him warn him."

Joe made the required promise, and soon after old Mrs. Bentley died.

It was not long before Joe discovered that his young master's wife had a lover. George Bentley himself was not above reproach, and had it not been for his promise Joe would have let matters take their course. As it was, he kept an eye on Jeannette Bentley, and one day, seeing her mount her horse and ride away, he followed her at a distance. She rode on to a bridge and waited. Joe crawled through some bushes and found a good position under the bridge. He soon heard the sound of a horse's hoofs, and Cyrus Hetherington, the lover, joined the young wife. Joe overheard them arranging a plan to elope together to France, Jeannette taking with her a large sum of money which her husband was keeping at home for the purpose of paying off a mortgage. The robbery and flight were to take place that night between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Joe was too wise to bring on the bloodshed that was sure to follow should he inform his master of the plot. He armed himself and went to the appointed rendezvous. Riding from there in the direction Hetherington would come, he met him, thrust a revolver in his face, disarmed him and took his papers, consisting of letters from Jeannette Bentley and other proofs of the intended robbery.

Hetherington disappeared, and Joe returned to the plantation. He had married a quadroon girl when she was old Mrs. Bentley's maid, and the couple were devoted to each other. Joe after leaving Hetherington sought his cabin and his Maggie. Approaching, he saw no light. The place was empty. Going to the nearest cabin, he eagerly made inquiries and was told that his wife had been sold. Hastening to the manor house, he found her young master at the sideboard pouring out a glass of brandy.

"Mars' George," he said, choking back his tears, "we've played together as children, and now you go to ruin me."

"What is it, Joe?" asked Bentley
shamefacedly.

"Dey say you done sold my Maggie."

Bentley did not reply for some time,
then said:

"That isn't true. She isn't sold."

"Then what is she?"

Another silence, then another reply:

"Well, I've been away all day, and I gave orders that Maggie should be taken to the white cottage."

"What for?"

This time there was no reply.

"Mars' George," said Joe, "I jist done yo' a little favah. I reckon when yo' know 'bout it yo'll gib me back my Maggie."

"A favor? What favor?"

"Before misters died she said to me to 'watch over yo' Mars' George to see dat nothin' happens him. I've been awatchin', and I've saved yo' from bein' robbed. Mars' George, ef I done prove to yo' dat I saved yo' money, will yo' gib me back my Maggie?"

"I will, Joe."

Joe produced papers taken from Hetherington, withholding Jeannette Bentley's letters. Bentley seized them and scanned them eagerly.

"The infernal scoundrel!" he exclaimed. "How did you get these?"

Joe tried in vain to give Hetherington's part in the plot without revealing the part taken by his master's wife.

Bentley became suspicious that the boy was deceiving him and violently ordered him to make a clean breast. Joe, finding that the whole plot must come out, gave the required information.

George Bentley with the ferocity of a tiger rushed to his wife's room. She was not there.

"Joe," he said when he returned,
"my mother was right, and I was wrong. I sinned against her, and I have sinned against you. Go to the white cottage and take Maggie home with you. From this night you and she are free. Tomorrow I will sign your free papers."

Jeannette Bentley was never seen again at the plantation. Hetherington joined her at the rendezvous, and they went abroad together. Joe had not only saved his master from being robbed, but from committing murder. The slave was commended for his wisdom by every one, though his master at first regretted that he had not been informed in time to kill the couple. Later he secured a divorce and married again. It was then that he fully realized how faithful and how farsighted Joe had been in saving him from a double murder. He gave Joe a small plantation. It is being worked today by the former slave's descendants.

B. & O. EXCURSIONS

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Civil War, 1861-1865.

It was the first and most desirable point of vantage coveted by both the Federal and Confederate armies. In May, 1861, the four Federal advance columns concentrated at Parkersburg, W. Va., Wheeling, W. Va., Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and at Washington. To retain the advantage, the Federal Government established block houses along the railroad from the Monocacy to the Ohio river, besides forts at Winchester, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, Piedmont and New Creek (Keyser). The B. & O. was the base of operations for the Federal army for nearly four years and from which the government could not take advance line earlier than November 1864. The B. & O. was the means of communication between the West and the Army of the Potomac, and was consequently in a continual state of siege. Harper's Ferry, the key to the Shenandoah Valley, first famed through the fanatical attempt of John Brown, in defying the laws and customs of his country, was captured or recaptured eight times in three years. The Government Arsenal and armories which were located there, were destroyed by the government to prevent their capture. One hundred and seventy-nine battles of greater or less importance were fought on or adjacent to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, not taking into consideration the innumerable skirmishes.

All through trains from St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, Columbus, Cleveland, Wheeling and Pittsburgh to the East, run via Washington.

Excursion tickets are sold every Sunday between all local stations west of the Ohio river, on the Baltimore & Ohio at rate of one fare for the round trip, good going and returning on date of sale only.

CROWNING OF EDWARD

Description of Chair England's King Will Sit On.

NEARLY SEVEN FEET IN HEIGHT.

Made by Order of Edward I. to Hold the Stone of Destiny on Which Scotland's Sovereigns Used to Sit When Crowned—Legends About the Stone—Chair is Made of Solid Oak.

The coronation chair on which the sovereigns of England sit when they are crowned and which will be used by the present king is often called St. Edward's chair out of respect to the Confessor, near whose shrine in Westminster abbey it usually stands, says the New York World. It was made by order of Edward I. to hold the coronation stone, or stone of destiny, on which the Scottish kings used to sit when they were crowned and which stone Edward I. captured and sent to Westminster in the year 1296. The chair is made of solid oak, the parts being pinned together, and is still firm and sound, though much disfigured by wanton mutilations as well as by the hand of time. The whole chair was originally gilded and covered with ornamental work, much of which may yet be distinguished upon a close inspection. At each coronation it is covered with cloth of gold or tissue and is disfigured with the nails, tacks and brass pins that have been used to fasten the coverings.

The chair's dimensions are as follows: Entire height, 6 feet 9 inches; breadth at the bottom, 3 feet 2 inches; width at the bottom, 2 feet; breadth of the seat, 2 feet 5 inches; depth of the seat, 1 foot 6 inches.

At the coronation ceremony the chair is brought out of St. Edward's chapel and placed before the altar in the eastern limb of the abbey church. Except Mary I., who was crowned in a chair that was sent to England by the pope, all the sovereigns of England, beginning with Edward II., have sat in this chair at their coronations. On the occasion of the installation of Oliver Cromwell the chair was brought into Westminster hall, and this was the only time it ever left the abbey since it was made by Master Walter in or about the year 1297.

The chair owes its importance to the stone called the stone of destiny, which it was made to preserve and which rests under its seat on a kind of middle frame supported by four crouching lions on a bottom frame or plinth. This stone was placed in the abbey of Scone, in the county of Perth, in the year 850 by King Kenneth, who is said to have caused to be inscribed on it in Gaelic an ancient prophecy to this effect:

If fate speak sooth, where'er this stone is found,
The Scots shall monarchs of that realm be crowned.

A prophecy to this effect was undoubtedly extant long before the time of King Kenneth, and the belief in it is said to have reconciled many Scottish people to the union of Scotland and England. The kings of Scotland were unquestionably crowned for some centuries while sitting on this stone in the abbey of Scone. But whence did it come originally?

According to one account, it is the identical stone upon which the patriarch Jacob laid his head on the plains of Luz when he had the vision of the angels ascending and descending the ladder that reached to heaven. Some say that it found its way from the land of Luz to Egypt, that from Egypt it was taken to Spain by Gethalus, the son of Cecrops, a wild young man who, having been banished to Egypt from Athens by his father, married Scotia (hence the words Scotland and Scottish), the daughter of Pharaoh, and fled from the plagues with her from Spain, they taking the stone with them. From Spain it was taken to Ireland and thence to Scotland by their descendants.

Others say that from the plains of Luz it was taken to the temple of Jerusalem, thence to the shores of Asia Minor and thence direct by sea to Ireland. The earliest documentary allusion to the stone as having been that used as a pillow by Jacob occurs in a work called "Processus Baldredi Contra Fingenta Regis Anglie," which was compiled in 1301.

Another legend says that it was taken to Ireland from Denmark by the Tuatha de Danaans, an ancient Irish people. The Irish historians deny that the lia fail (stone of destiny) on which the Irish kings were crowned has ever left Ireland and maintain that it still stands proudly at the head of the rebels' grave on Tara hill.

The geologists rudely say that the stone is certainly of Scottish origin and that it was probably quarried there a good many hundred years ago.

A War Memorial at Cape Town.

The archbishops of Canterbury, York, Armagh and Dublin and the primus of Scotland have expressed their approval of the proposal to erect the eastern portion of the new Cape Town cathedral as a memorial of the war and to preserve therein the names of all who have been killed in action or died of wounds or disease since the war began, no matter to what denomination they may have belonged, says the London Telegraph. The lists, which are being compiled from official returns, will include not only soldiers, but also all civilians in receipt of war office pay, and will be arranged by units, each list to be placed in the part of the building allocated to that portion of the empire represented by the unit. The cost of the memorial will be about $175,000, toward which about $60,000 has been subscribed.

A Losing Streak.

Columbus is in a losing rut sure enough, and the shake up of the team at Louisville this week did not seem to have the desired effect. The Senators lost again Wednesday, to Toledo 7 to 1. Toledo is not in the same class as Columbus and something must be radically wrong when the Mud Hens beat the Senators that easily.

This is one of the unfortunate ruts a team gets into occasionally, but the Columbus team is too well balanced to stay there any great length of time.

Won on a Foul.

Boston, Mass., June 19—Albert Champion was given his race with Bobby Walthour at the Revere track Tuesday afternoon on a foul based on the action of Walthour's pacemakers in crowding the Frenchman so that he lost his pace. The race, for 25 miles, motor paced, was started under a protest against Walthour's motors. Walthour caught Champion in the second mile and passed him in the twelfth mile by crowding. After that Walthour gained rapidly and finished 12 laps to the good. The time was 36:04 2-5.

In the 25 mile motor paced race at Charles river park, Harry Elkes had a walkover, finishing ahead of the second man, Will Stinson, by fully a mile and a half, while Hugh McLean was three miles to the rear. The race was decidedly a poor one. The time was 38:13 3-5.

The Crews Practice.

As the time for the great college boat races at Poughkeepsie draws near, the coaches of the 'varsity eights are working along different lines to bring their crews up to top form, and now the men are nearly on edge. Cornell has been doing only easy rowing, as Courtney realized his mistake of bringing the men to top form too early, two years ago, when they gave out after three miles. O'Dea sent his Wisconsin crews over the course at top speed and they are showing up well. The Wisconsin men are all big, strong fellows and just now are favorites for the 'varsity races.

Georgetown is not showing up as well in practice, as was expected. Payne, Pennsylvania's coxswain, is having trouble getting down to weight, and Register, who only weighs 100 pounds may be in the boat Saturday.

McGovern a Plunger.

A writer in the Brooklyn Citizen says that Terry McGovern is devoting almost all his spare time to the race tracks. The ex-champion featherweight is said to be a plunger, and that he is likely to go the way of the majority of those who get into that game.

Pennsylvania University defeated Gettysburg college in the closing game of the season Tuesday, 8 to 0.

Burkett hit the first ball pitched by Shields at St. Louis Wednesday for a home run over the right field fence.

A PLEASING FRENCH TRAIT.

Love Between Brothers a Strongly Marked Characteristic.

One of the ways in which the close union of French family life shows itself is the great affection of brothers for each other. There is an intimacy between them in good and evil fortune which one does not find in other countries. A brother who takes a high position by his talents loses no opportunity to forward the interests of one of lesser ability or of no ability. He never treats the latter as a drag on him, and perhaps scarcely feels that he is one. Married brothers often like to live in the same house, on different floors, and to hire summer villas in close proximity.

Most of the famous Frenchmen whom I know had each a brother to whom he was devoted. Louis and Charles Blanc, though so dissimilar in appearance, tastes, disposition, and married to women who disliked each other, were, morally speaking, Siamese twins until death severed the bond. The same might be said of the Garnier-Pages, of Jules Favre and his brother Leon, of Ernest and Arthur Ricard, of Puoch, the sculptor, and his brother the deputy. Paul and Hippolyte Flaud, the painters, were known in their student days as the Siamese twins. It not infrequently happens that brothers go into literary partnership. In instances that occur to me are the Goncourts, the Icosens, the Marguerittes. It would be impossible to discern the work of one of any of these brothers from that of another. What is very curious, each brother, as in the case of Charles and Louis Blanc, Ernest and Arthur Picard, Jules and Leon Favre, differed strikingly in every characteristic from the other. The dissimilarity of the Marguerittes is so great that one wonders how brothers could be so unlike. Alphonse Daudet was not a bit like his brother Ernest, an accomplished novelist also.—London News.

DUMB ARTIST'S MODEL

Once Beautiful Miss Wackerman Returns Home Insane.

ORAZED BY AN INSINUATION

Driven From British Artist's Home, Her Failure to Receive Message Completed Collapse—Broke Glass in Her Mania—Taken to Buffalo, Where Familiar Scenes May Restore Her.

Speechless and with her mind and her health wrecked, Miss Helen Vandenberg Wackerman, who has posed as a model for several of the most famous British artists and whose reason gave way in London because of alleged insinuations against her character made by Professor Hubert Herkimer, R. A., was brought back to New York city on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse by her mother and uncle the other day, says the New York Herald. The party started at once for Buffalo, the home of the young woman, where it is hoped familiar surroundings will restore both her mental and her physical health.

Few traces of her beauty remain to the girl after a half year's confinement in retreats for the insane. Her large brown eyes are dimmed, her smooth forehead bears deep wrinkles born of an apparently constant effort to fathom her surroundings, and her shapely face, while not emaciated, has lost much of the glow for which she was in the days of her health noted among the English artist colony.

More pathetic even than her appearance was the young woman's inability or unwillingness to speak. Only twice in nine weeks has she uttered a coherent word. The first of these occasions was during a visit of her mother to her in Crayburn asylum, England, when she repeated a few lines of the hymn "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

Other refuge have I none,
Hangs my helpless soul on thee.
Leave, oh, leave me not alone!
Still support and comfort me.

The only other time at which her tongue obeyed her brain since her troubles began was when in the presence of her uncle, Dr. L. G. Smith of Buffalo, she picked up a newspaper and read the expression "out of my house" which recalled her painful experience at the home of Professor Herkimer. Then she exclaimed in apparently distress, "Oh, oh!" and immediately tore the newspaper into shreds.

Although both the girl's mother and her uncle repeatedly declared that she was not violent and that she understood all that was going on about her, it was evident that her condition was far worse than they wished to acknowledge. Immediately after she was placed in the cab which was to take her to the Grand Central station she thrust her elbow through the window, sending the glass shivering to the pavement. This desire to break glassware, the attendants on the ship declared, is one of the phases of the unfortunate girl's mania which were most frequently manifested on the voyage. During the trip she smashed chinaware and glasses at every possible opportunity, and she kept the stewards in a constant turmoil every time she appeared on deck or in the small dining saloon, which was the only place she was permitted to use for exercise.

Among the passengers the young woman's plight aroused the sincerest sympathy. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr, who returned on the steamship, being especially solicitous about her welfare.

Of her daughter's troubles and the causes leading up to them Mrs. Wackerman spoke freely and in a bitter vein. While she blamed Professor Herkimer for their inception, she was most bitter because of the failure of a cable company to deliver a message of comfort she had sent as soon as she learned that the artist had commanded the girl to depart from his house. To this failure she attributes directly the collapse of her daughter's mind, and she declared vehemently that she would sue the company for damages in a heavy sum.

"I do not care to discuss Professor Herkimer at this time," Mrs. Wackerman said as she stood on the pier. "What he had against my little girl he will not tell. It is this flat refusal that caused her the anguish which may cablegram, had it been delivered, would undoubtedly have relieved. His words to her were, 'I have heard something about you, and you cannot stop in my house any longer.' Then he referred all the friends who had interested themselves in her to his solicitor. He knows my little girl is blameless and that his insinuations are groundless."

"Brooding over his remark and awaiting my undelivered message caused my daughter to become insane. After she was sent to the asylum in which I found her she seemed to improve, but when she left it she had a relapse, and she had to be taken to St. Giles' infirmary. She has improved wonderfully since then, and we have hopes of her complete recovery."

The incident which gave Miss Wackerman notoriety and which was the principal cause of her mental disorder occurred last year, when Professor Herkimer exhibited in the Royal academy a picture entitled "Seeing I Save Not, Hearing Not, I Heed Not." To those, especially of the artist colony, who observed the painting it was patent that it was a portrait of Miss Wackerman, but contrary to custom the artist had omitted to attach to the canvas the name of the model. This omission caused much comment, and then it was announced that Professor Herkimer had forbidden the girl to re-enter his house.

FRAMPTON'S GODSEND

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

In the pages of that colossal work of reference, the Universal, Royal and Imperial Art Dictionary, may be found the following interesting paragraph:

Knoophuysen, Johannes (1869-94), commonly called Van Dordrecht from the place of his birth. A pupil of the elder Cuyper and a fellow student of the younger and more famous member of that family, he excels in the depiction of cattle grazing and reposing.

All of which reads ordinarily enough until one looks up "Johannes Knoophuysen, called Van Dordrecht," and finds that such an artist never existed.

It all began in the confidence tools of the Philadelphia Daily Disseminator. We were discussing the features for the coming week when Frampton strode in. Now Jack Frampton was an Englishman, something of an art critic on The Disseminator. He conducted a column as intermittent as malaria and nearly as sweeping. As regards art, he honestly held that the only living writer at all worthy of attention was John Sedley Frampton.

Jim Chuffey, our Sunday supplement editor, loved nothing better than to prepare pitfalls for the feet of the self-confident Frampton. But a magnificent trait of the latter, a national trait indeed, was that he never knew when he was beaten and often succeeded in turning the tables on the funmakers.

On this particular afternoon Frampton found us in the throes of an art discussion and smiled superciliously. Jim Chuffey turned toward him with an appealing air.

"Oh, Frampton!" he exclaimed. "Here's Stephenson claiming that the elder Cuyper was a better artist than Knoophuysen."

"Knoophuysen?" repeated the critic. "Yes, Johannes Knoophuysen, the cattle painter. Of course you know all about him."

The expression of doubt on Frampton's face was only momentary. If he never owned to defeat, neither did he confess to ignorance.

"Oh, Knoophuysen!" he said. "Yes, of course I know all about the old fellow—fine painter, very fine. His work in many respects equals that of Claude Lorraine. He is particularly good in the treatment of golden sunshine, and his cattle approach Paul Potter's."

"Knoophuysen has been shamefully neglected," said Chuffey earnestly. "You ought to write a screed about him for your column, Jack."

"H'm!" observed Frampton, his brow clouding again. "I haven't much time to look him up. Suppose you write me a brief biography, and I'll run over it and use it for next Sunday's paper."

"I think Knoophuysen's masterpiece is 'The Cow and Calf in a High Wind,'" ventured Stephenson at this juncture.

"Nonsense!" snapped Frampton. "The Cattle Fair on the Canal" is infinitely superior. Lord St. Mungo bought it in '60 for £3,000."

Down went "The Cattle Fair" and "The Cow and Calf" on Jim Chuffey's memoir of Knoophuysen. Next Sunday The Disseminator gave to the world an appreciative account of this master, with a glowing eulogy of his work, the whole signed "John Sedley Frampton."

Not long after that a notable publishing house of the metropolis commenced the compilation of the Universal, Royal and Imperial Art Dictionary. It was destined to eclipse all other works of the kind in scope and thoroughness. Frampton took it as a matter of course when he was chosen editor of the publication.

In course of time the great dictionary appeared, and there, to his intense delight, Chuffey found the foregoing biography of Johannes Knoophuysen van Dordrecht.

This was the ingenious Chuffey's opportunity. He seized pen and ink and straightaway indicated a stirring letter to The Easel, a famous organ of international art. The letter called attention to the name of Knoophuysen in the new dictionary and roundly declared that no such person had ever existed.

Frampton could not let that pass. Next week he appeared in print with a defense of Knoophuysen's identity. By a curious coincidence he had actually lighted upon the name among a list of obscure Dutch painters in the seventeenth century, and this flimsy fact his vigorous imagination expanded into a case which really sounded plausible enough.

Chuffey replied under several different aliases, sometimes supporting, sometimes combating, the Knoophuysen theory. Several well known art critics took part in the controversy, which spread to England and even to the continent. Matters looked bad for Frampton's side of the question at first. Then a London dealer produced two genuine Knoophuysens. When a Paris collector displayed the original "Cow and Calf" of Knoophuysen van Dordrecht and sold the same to a Chicago millionaire, the tide began to turn.

At length Frampton's "Monograph on the Life of Johannes Knoophuysen" appeared and convinced many doubters, though the dispute raged even more fiercely. There were Knoophuysenists and anti-Knoophuysenists, and the enthusiastic founded the Knoophuysen Art school.

Jim Chuffey was balked after all. Frampton has come out with flying colors. He is now the prosperous editor of an art journal devoted to the Dutch school and to Knoophuysen in particular.

And that was how "Johannes Knoophuysen, commonly called Van Dordrecht," dawdled upon the world of art.

Columbus, O., June 19—Col. Chas.

G. Penney, formerly of Newark, for the past year commandant at the U. S. barracks in Columbus, has turned over the command of the post to Col. Wm. P. Rogers, along with all property carried by the position of commandant, and today he left the city.

Col. Penney, accompanied by his wife, will go first to Buffalo, but will be in San Francisco in time to take a transport for the Philippines some time in July. Colonel Rogers will probably not be long in command here, as his promotion will also take him to the Philippines, where he will command the Thirtieth infantry.

Lieut. Dannemiller, two brothers, recently commissioned, will sail on the same transport with Colonel Penney and will be assigned one to the Eleventh infantry and the other to the Twenty-sixth, Colonel Penney's regiment.

Her Staging Pose.

Crossing on an ocean liner recently was a woman who sang whenever she was asked, but she imposed conditions. You were not to mind her attitude. She sang with her hands clasped behind her neck, her elbows akimbo on a line with her pompadour, the eyes fixed on the smokestack, if she could have seen up through the promenade deck. She said it was her method. Other women suggested that the only method about it was her idea that she looked pretty that way. She sang in this attitude at the ship's concert.—New York Press.

One Attraction Missing.

"Say," said the young writer who had been engaged by the circus man to write up a prospectus of the show, "I've about exhausted my vocabulary on this thing. Have you a thesaurus?" "No, by thunder!" said the circus man. "We've only got a rhinoceros, but I'll cable over and buy one."—New York Times.

The Big Fire.

"Yes," said the conductor. "I remember it very well. That was in 1807, the year of the big fire."

"What big fire?" asked the other man.

"Don't you recollect? Twenty-nine fellows on our line were bounced for knocking down."—Chicago Tribune.
